

Visually Cued Instruction for Children with Autism and Pervasive Developmental Disorders.

Quill, Kathleen Ann

Abstract: This article discusses the theoretical rationale for visually cued instruction and provides examples of pictographic and written language cues used to enhance the organizational skills, general skill development, academic learning, communication, socialization, and self-control of children with autism and pervasive developmental disorders. (DB)

Title: Visually Cued Instruction for Children with Autism and Pervasive Developmental Disorders.

Author: Quill, Kathleen Ann

Journal Citation: Focus on Autistic Behavior, v10 n3 p10-20 Aug 1995

ISSN: 0887-1566

Publication Year: 1995

Document Type: Journal Article (080); Project Description (141)

Target Audience: Policymakers

ERIC Identifier: EJ511756

Clearinghouse Identifier: EC612219

Available from: UMI

This document is NOT available from the ERIC Document Reproduction Service (EDRS).

Descriptors: * Autism; * Cues; Interpersonal Communication; Interpersonal Competence; * Language Acquisition; Self Control; Skill Development; * Teaching Methods; Theories; * Visual Stimuli

Identifiers: *Pervasive Developmental Disorders

Please call our office for more information on this article.

Or else a copy is available to order, for a fee, through:

- ERIC Clearinghouse on Information and Technology (ERIC IT)
(<http://ericir.syr.edu/Eric/>)

- The originating journal
- From article reproduction services such as
 - Infotrieve: 800.422.4633; www4.infotrieve.com, service@infotrieve.com
 - ingenta: 800.296.2221; www.ingenta.com, ushelp@ingenta.com